

We're growing a new car park...

April 2019

Lane Cove Art Laneways

Artist: Rachel Stone

The Rosenthal Project provides a great opportunity to utilise the blank space provided by the laneways and hoarding.

Lane Cove's new Art Laneways arrived in 2017.

Council's Rosenthal Public Art Hoarding Project features an outdoor gallery that provides a sense of colour, impact and energy for pedestrians, businesses and visitors to Birdwood and Rosenthal Laneways. This vibrant space creates a sense of discovery for the community when they next visit the Village.

The feature artwork 'Song of a little bird that fell in love with a whale' by Rachel Stone brings a bountiful vibrancy to the length of the hoarding. A series of 15 artworks painted by public artists and young people from Lane Cove are featured in between the design.

A full list of the artworks and their descriptions can be found at www.lanecove.nsw.gov.au/streetsidegallery

Council also engaged an artist to paint the length of the Birdwood and Rosenthal laneways with a temporary artwork to help raise awareness of the changed conditions in the area.

The artworks are designed to be moved as required throughout the project's construction so that the bright and engaging artworks continue to enliven the construction space.

Council creates a colourful outdoor gallery for visitors to Birdwood and Rosenthal Laneways.